Atty., Richard S. Cohen, Asst. Dist. Atty., Lewiston, for plaintiff.

James A. Billings, by appointment of the Court, Waterville, for defendant. Before DUFRESNE, C. J., and POMEROY, WERNICK, ARCHIBALD and DELAHANTY, JJ. DELAHANTY, Justice. The defendant, Terry L. Stephens, was convicted by a jury in the Superior Court, Androscoggin County, of the murder of Arlen Smith. His appeal to this Court is based on the following grounds: 1) the Court erred in denying defendant's motion for a directed verdict of acquittal at the close of the State's case in chief; 2) the Court erred in admitting a prior consistent statement by the defendant; and 3) the Court erred in not granting defendant's motion for a new trial. On June 3, 1975, at approximately 5:15 P.M., an automobile, owned by the Smith family, was struck from behind and the occupants dragged to their deaths. The Smiths were fatally injured and the defendant, Terry L. Stephens, was injured, but survived. The testimony reveals the defendant went to the Smith home on June 3, 1975, at approximately 6:15 A.M. to see his brother, Dennis, who was a friend of the Smith family. During that morning

Early in the second half, Sounders midfielder Nicolas Lodeiro picked up a loose ball on the right side of the box and chested a cross into the heart of the Vancouver penalty area. In perfect position, Lamar Neagle appeared to chest a header down into the back of the net, but instead it somehow skipped away from him and went off the left-side post and in. The goal was a critical one for the Sounders, as they had been held scoreless in the first half while taking heavy and early punishment from Vancouver. The Whitecaps had the advantage in possession and shot attempts throughout the first half, but the Sounders were able to counterattack several times, with Lodeiro, Neagle, Osvaldo Alonso and Joevin Jones making critical runs in behind the opposition's back line. Vancouver's best chance in the first half came when it capitalized on a giveaway from midfielder Brad Rusin just inside the Sounders' 18-yard box. It was a badly misfired shot, but it cleared the crossbar, so the score stayed at 0-0. But the second half was all Seattle, and Neagle was a key piece of their late, late push that brought them the 3-1 victory over the Whitecaps. In the 57th minute, it was Jones, who had been buzzing around the pitch all half, who attacked Vancouver's left-side defense. "I felt like I was free," Jones said. "It's not like I was pressured or anything like that. It was me going in there and just seeing the ball." It wasn't just Jones. It was Neagle, Lodeiro and Alonso all breaking up the opposition's passing patterns, and the Sounders were the only team to have more than five shots on goal in the second half. Alonso was particularly effective at shutting down the Whitecaps' midfield, while Lodeiro and Neagle were also consistently finding the right channels to run into. "Yeah, I just felt the atmosphere was there," Neagle said. ◆ 2d92ce491b
