Predictors of restenosis after percutaneous transluminal angioplasty for femoropopliteal occlusive disease. A comparative study of endovascular and surgical intervention. This study assesses the outcome of percutaneous transluminal angioplasty (PTA) of femoropopliteal occlusive disease and attempts to identify the predictors of restenosis. In all, 111 consecutive patients (94 men and 17 women; average age, 71.8 years) with femoropopliteal occlusive disease were treated with PTA. The patients were divided into 2 groups according to the vascular procedure. The endovascular group (n = 70) included patients who were treated by a
