The car, one of 100 of the first generation K-6 model Chevys -- which mark the start of a national movement -- was driven from Washington to New York. "I was just a 16-year-old girl then," says Blackman. "This was a part of my life that I remember vividly." Blackman, who is one of six students from Perry School to be named a member of the Save America's Treasures committee, will be one of 100 artists, historians and Native Americans to be named on Aug. 13 the Maryland-D.C. Preservation Alliance's "Worthy of Preservation" list of the nation's historic landmarks, along with more than 5,000 nominations submitted by the public. The list will be considered by the Maryland-D.C. Preservation Alliance in a month-long recognition process that will result in the commissioning of a study to determine the most important historic places in the two states. The Washington-area landmarks will be featured on the "Heritage Trails" tour and will be part of the growing list of national "Worthy of Preservation" landmarks. Blackman will receive a prize that includes the opportunity to be named a Maryland Historic Landmark. Blacksman, along with other school trustees and students who helped out with the pageant, was one of 11,000 entries for the Save America's Treasures program. The students will join the 50,000 members of the public who responded to that program. "Most of us will be shocked to know that there are so many people who really care about our society," said Lisaurie Green, president of the Maryland-D.C. Preservation Alliance. "I think the most compelling stories come from the young people who are just starting out and who are passionate 1cb139a0ed
