AutoCAD and the Dassault Systemes (formerly Dassault Systèmes) AutoCAD LT application are part of the Dassault Systèmes product portfolio. It was first released in 1990 as AutoCAD LT, a low-end version of AutoCAD. A similar and concurrent offering from Dassault Systems is AutoCAD MEP (Autocad Mechanical, Electrical & Plumbing) which is a set of tools designed specifically for mechanical, electrical, and plumbing engineers. AutoCAD Application Back in the days when AutoCAD first came out (1982), it was a 32 bit DOS application running on a 286. It used the high resolution (640x480) video output of the VGA adapter in the 286 computer. You can buy one of these adapters on eBay today for around $40. The ability to use the machine video output as a graphics terminal was a breakthrough in computer graphics for DOS, since it made possible the use of home computers as a design tool. At that time, CAD was primarily a tool for drawing and drafting done on a mainframe computer or minicomputer with the output being sent to the next operator or to a plotter. Creating the worlds first graphics tool in a home computer, the version 1.0 of AutoCAD was released in December of 1982. It was based on the Cambridge Graphics suite of programs, which had been developed by Cambridge Research International (CRI) and released by Cambridge System Design (CAD) in January 1982. In 1983, AutoCAD was released on floppy disk for the first time. It was originally priced at $2,999, which was almost 4 times more expensive than CADI's competitor, Autocad's nearest competitor at the time, CRI's BASIC CADDY. AutoCAD version 1.0, was based on CADDY's Draw, Dump, Fill, and Print modules and offered 12 function keys, four of which were reserved by CRI for use by CADDY. The remaining 8 function keys (F1 through F8) were added by Autodesk. The first release of AutoCAD, version 1.0 was made available for purchase in late 1983, but the first beta version of the software was released in February of 1984. While the commercial price for AutoCAD was

THE STATE. No. A10A1610. Court of Appeals of Georgia. November 1, 2010. *596 John E. McKenzie, for appellant. Tracy G. Lilly, District Attorney, Debra H. Bernes, Assistant District Attorney, for appellee. BLACKBURN, Senior Appellate Judge. Following a jury trial, Terrence O'Brien Lake appeals his convictions for aggravated child molestation, aggravated sodomy, sexual battery, and attempted rape. On appeal, Lake argues that the trial court erred by failing to instruct the jury on the offenses of sexual battery and attempted rape as lesser included offenses of aggravated child molestation. Finding no error, we affirm. On appeal from a criminal conviction, the defendant no longer enjoys a presumption of innocence, and we view the evidence in the light most favorable to the verdict. We do not weigh the evidence or determine witness credibility, but only determine if the evidence is sufficient under Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 99 S.Ct. 2781, 61 L.Ed.2d 560 (1979). (Citation omitted.) Holt v. State, 280 Ga. 640, 641, 632 S.E.2d 676 (2006). Viewed in this light, the evidence shows that Lake sexually molested the ten-year-old daughter of his live-in girlfriend and her boyfriend. In addition to the daughter, Lake sexually molested her two younger siblings who were under five years old at the time of trial and remained living with Lake's girlfriend and her boyfriend. Lake was arrested and charged with (1) aggravated child molestation (OCGA § 16-6-4(c)), (2) aggravated sodomy (OCGA § 16-6-2), (3) sexual battery (OCGA § 16-6-22.1(b)), (4) rape (OCGA § 16-6-1(a)), and (5) 5b5f913d15
